

Santa Claus was a real person named Nicholas, a bishop of the Christian church in the 4th century. He became known as St. Nicholas because of the miracles he performed on behalf of children and the poor.